finca el patio ingenio: La casa de la memoria rota Juan Rivera Arroyo, 2023-09-13 «La percepción de haber vivido una vida plena depende tanto de lo vivido como de la habilidad de recordarlo». En 1959, y tras perder sus tierras y posesiones durante la Revolución cubana, la familia de los Belmonte se instala en Tuxpan, Veracruz. Atrás quedarán toda una vida y un extraño proyecto arquitectónico concebido por Alejo Belmonte: la casa de la memoria. Un proyecto que irá fraguándose de generación en generación, casi como una obsesión, sustentado en la creencia sencilla y antigua de que nuestros recuerdos queden preservados en un espacio arquitectónico. Es esta una novela de asombrosa transparencia y de arquitecturas reales e imaginarias pero de contundente eficacia literaria; su original estructura dialoga con los juegos formales de Italo Calvino. Juan Rivera Arroyo ya es, con esta tercera novela, uno de los escritores jóvenes más singulares: un arquitecto de la forma o, mejor aún, de la palabra. Aquí, las ventanas iluminan, los espacios fluyen, los rincones recuerdan, los muros oprimen... y narran. Este libro es la otra cara de la moneda de la literatura mexicana de hoy.

La serie resultará estrechamente entrelazada; pero esto, respecto de un volumen a otro, no significará continuación por necesidad. Cada tomo será una novela completa, independiente cada obra, sin perjuicio, no obstante, de que los personajes pendientes de solución en una, pasen a desenvolverse en otra, y aun los de relativa importancia en la anterior, lleguen a ser los caracteres más salientes de la composición inmediata. Hecha esta advertencia, a guisa de introducción presento mi primer libro original; y del ilustrado criterio del público dependerá lo restante. Martín Morúa
